Adobe reader

You will need to be able to read .pdf files – on this course these will be text documents. The reason for using these rather than, say, Word documents is that they are able to be read on any computer that has the reader installed so it doesn't matter if you use Word or not.

The reader is free. If you haven't already got it, and most machines do these days, you'll need to download it from <http://get.adobe.com/uk/reader/otherversions/> .

On the screen you need to select your operating system eg Windows 7, Windows XP, Mac OS Intel 10.8. Then you select the language you want to use and finally the version. For the latter I would suggest the latest version ie the one with the highest number. Click on 'Download Now' and follow the instructions on the screen.
